Article I

The name of the organization shall be Associated Students of the Salinas Junior College.

Time marches on!

Dedication

Twenty-one years of democracy in action are behind the Associated Students of Salinas Junior College. Since the college was established, student government has rested with the students; a minimum of supervision has prevailed. The administration has wisely left student problems up to the students and they have profited by solving their own problems.

To the continuance of the successful self-government which thrives at Salinas Junior College, we dedicate this book.

Foreword

Pictorial evidence of the 1947-48 year at Salinas Junior College is what the La Reata staff has attempted to present with this volume. Editorial comment has been kept to a minimum, and photography has been emphasized, knowing that pictures, rather than words, can best capture the memories which students will want to take with them.

Forming the governing policies for student activities in this year of change and advancement was the primary task of the Commission of Associated Students of Salinas Junior College. Principal responsibility of the student administrative board is to oversee all student activities. Foremost task was that of backing the student hall plan.

Alpha Gamma Sigma

In the fall of 1947, Alpha Gamma Sigma re-established Homecoming Day, an annual event until the war. An assembly on the morning of November 21 started the day's activities, which consisted of a parade down the main streets of Salinas, a football game, and a dance. Students and alumni proclaimed Homecoming Day a success.

Men's Club

A successful dinner following the annual Whiskerino-Field Day in late October was credited to the Men's Club of Salinas Junior College. The club, which consists of every male student of the college was especially active during the Whiskerino season when all men without beards were locked in stocks as a punishment for their nonconformance with regulations.

Upsilon Gamma Chi

One of the main functions of Upsilon Gamma Chi, the college women's organization, was the promotion of Sadie Hawkins' Day. Transforming the campus into famed Dogpatch, the women captured their mates and toted them to the annual dance in the men's gym that evening. Among the other activities of the club was the sponsoring of the Christmas Party, the spring picnic, and the Ribbonero.

Officers: back row, Frank Oliver, president; and Tom Russo, vice-president. Front row, Bernice Sommers, treasurer; and Ramona Kilfoyl, secretary.

Newman Club

Representing the Catholic students of Salinas Junior College in student activities was the Newman Club. The club sponsored a float in the gala Homecoming Day celebration and shared the responsibility of bringing the Pomona Glee Club here. Among the year's outstanding achievements was the successful Newman Club dance during football season. The members were entertained by several guest speakers and afternoon luncheons.

Westminster Club

Providing the necessary religious background for Protestant students attending Salinas Junior College, the Westminster Club was active in numerous student body functions. Besides nominating a queen and entering a float in the Homecoming Day festivities, the club sponsored several outstanding features for their members. Religious topics of the day were discussed by competent speakers at several of the Westminster meetings.

Block S

Wearers of the Block "S" returned to their pre-war participation in school activities. Hitting a new high in membership, the club entered into many student activities that had been eliminated during the crisis. Sponsoring a dance following the final basketball tilt, the Block "S" proved their worth as planners.

W.A.A.

Women interested in athletics were afforded their chance by participating in the extensive Women's Athletic Association program. Several W.A.A. playdays were sponsored with as many women as possible entered in competition against other schools. The women traveled along with the men in the annual N.C.J.C. Badminton Tournament and turned in creditable performances. The Salinas entry grabbed a second place in the tourney.

Robin Hood's Sherwood Forest

Ski Club

The Ski Club, one of the most popular organizations in the college, had one of the largest memberships in its history. Weekend jaunts to the snow-covered Yosemite and Sequoia playgrounds were greeted with enthusiasm. Despite the discomfort of minor aches and pains, the Ski Club always had an enjoyable time. For the second consecutive year the club sponsored a student body dance.

Colhecon Club

For girls in the home economics department, the Colhecon Club offered an outlet for their domestic interests. With Miss Mildred Novotny to guide their activities, the club sponsored a successful dessert sale and another sale of candy. Representatives were sent to a convention to study home economics methods of other colleges in the state.

Junior Soroptimist

Sponsored by the Salinas Soroptimist Club, the junior club of the Salinas Soroptimists has benefited greatly during the past year from the interest shown by the group of local business women who make up the senior club.

Several luncheons were held downtown with the adult members of Soroptimists and other meetings were held at school.

Alpha Delta Epsilon

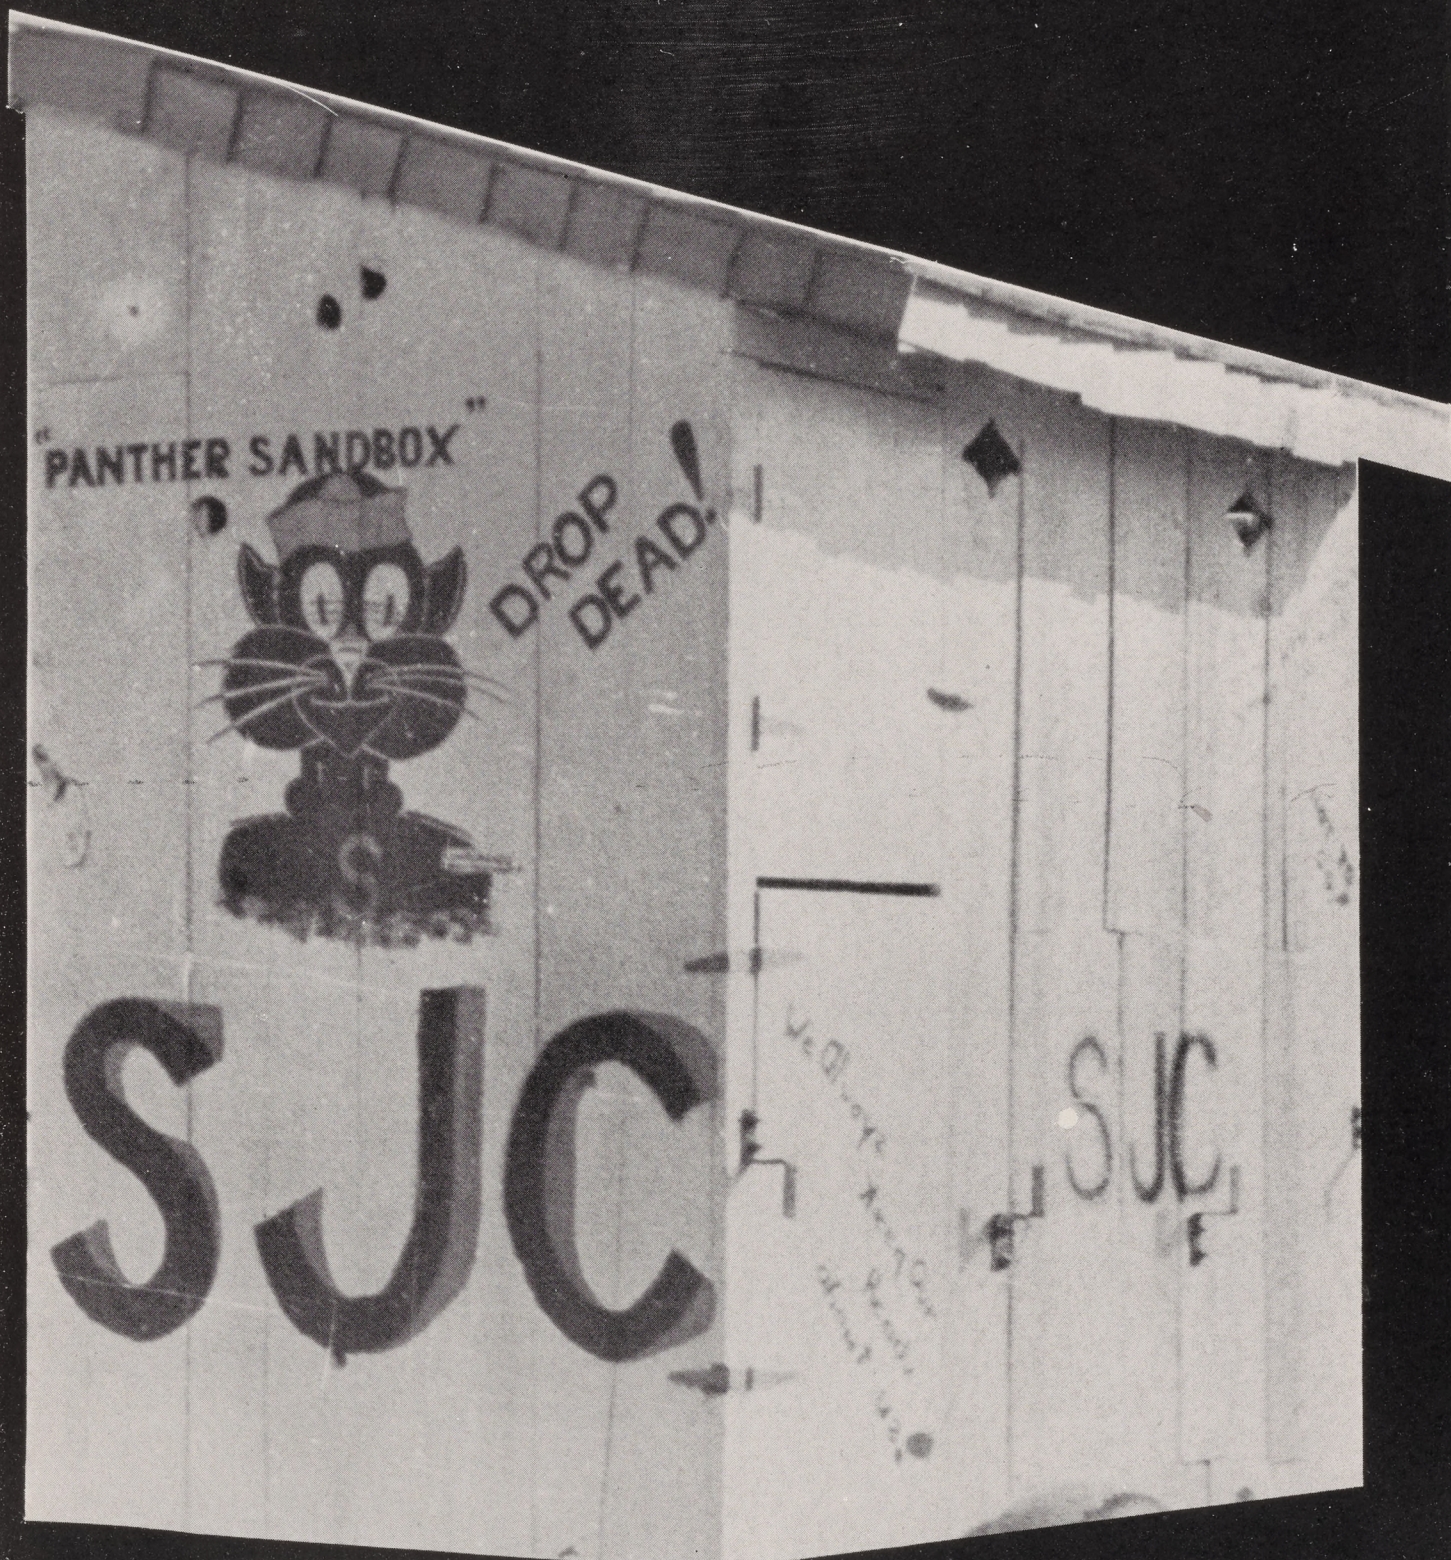

Composed of all the college art students, the Alpha Delta Epsilon is one of the most important organizations in the school. Through the efforts of these students, all student activities are given adequate publicity. Using their artistic skill on posters, banners, and signs the Art Club served the school in the best manner possible. The works of several outstanding regional artists were displayed in the Art Gallery.

La Reata

Editor Pat Smythe and his staff worked long and hard, attending virtually all college events, to present this year's La Reata. The staff attempted to cover every point of interest on the campus, academic and extra-curricular. The dance in the fall, co-sponsored by La Reata and Panther Sentinel, helped to finance the annual and avoided the necessity of advertisements. Mr. Stuart Dufour was staff advisor.

Ready for the trip

Under the direction of Mr. Lorell McCann, the Junior College band appeared between halves of all home football games this year, as well as traveling to other cities for out-of-town football contests.

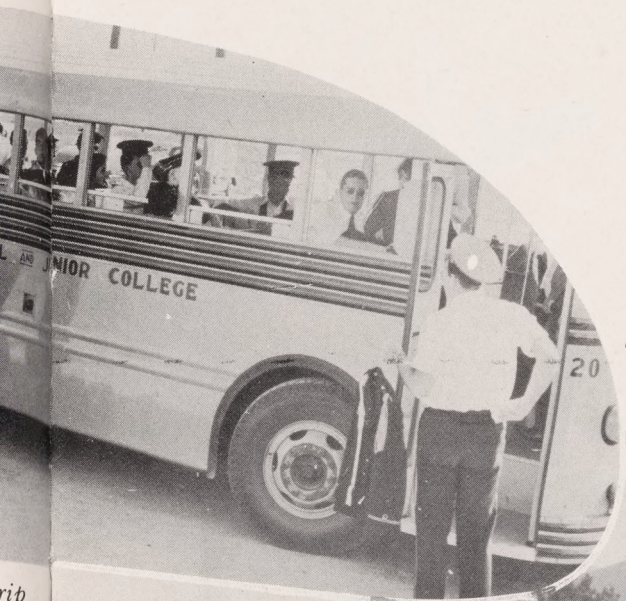

Featured on the program at all the pep rallies, the band also entertained the student body at noon concerts in the Little Theater and on the front lawn.

Orchestra

The Junior College orchestra appeared locally several times to entertain Salinas music lovers. Between-the-acts music for the fall and spring dramatic productions was furnished by the orchestra, led by Mr. Lorell McCann. A new feature this year was the musical entertainment offered on senior visiting days, when seniors from high schools in the area toured the junior college.

"Jane Eyre"

The Salinas Junior College drama department undertook the hard task of presenting one of the great dramatic offerings of our time when they selected Charlotte Bronte's "Jane Eyre" for their winter presentation. To put over a play of that impact and power, they took a great deal of practice and preparation, but their efforts were rewarded with success. Under the able direction of Miss Faith Fraser, the all-star college cast headed by Joan Waite, Jim Clark, and Marylou Hutson, accomplished another achievement in Salinas Junior College thespian history.

Whiskers and Ribbons were the order of the day at the annual Men's Club Field Day this year. Complete with the traditional mudhole, scene of the sophomore-freshman mud brawl, the day's festivities were proclaimed a success. Women steered clear of the rampaging men who tossed everything and everybody within reach into the hole.

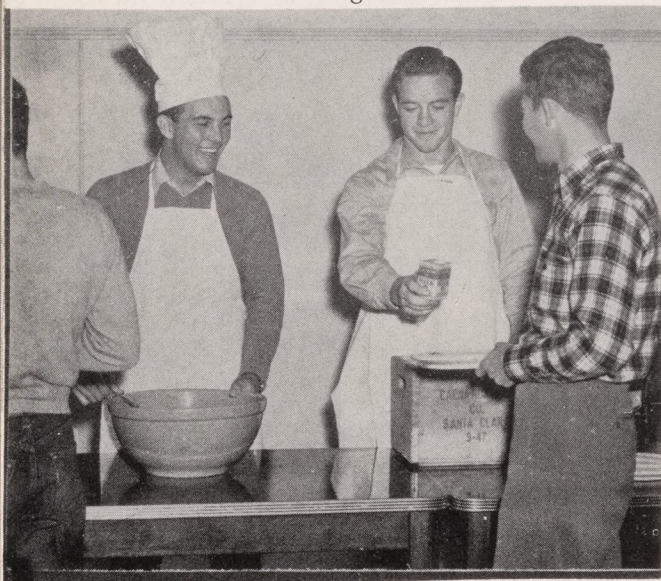

Culminating the day's activities was the annual supper at which the winners of the "whisker-growing" contest were named by a group of faculty judges. Entertainment by various members of the student body added to the occasion. Following the dinner the students proceeded to the football game where the locals responded to the cheering with a last minute 12-7 win over San Mateo.

Homecoming

A popular event at the junior college was revived this year when Alpha Gamma Sigma sponsored Homecoming Day. Held in the fall, the events consisted of an assembly at which time sophomore Nadine Conger was crowned Homecoming Queen to reign during the day, a downtown parade of J.C. floats, an alumni dinner, a football game with Menlo J.C., and a big homecoming dance.

Sadie Hawkins' Day

One of the best attended school affairs of the year was the Sadie Hawkins' Dance, held early in the spring, to which the girls invited the men. Sponsored annually by U.G.C., the dance boasted of intermission entertainment, which included a pie-eating contest in which the men participated. Square dances were enjoyed toward the end of the evening by the appropriately dressed Dog-patch dancers.

Winter Ball

One of the most festive social events of the season was the annual Winter Ball held at Rio Del Mar in mid-December. The theme was a "Winter Wonderland." The setting provided an appropriate background for the long-awaited social affair. The plans for the ball were made by Social Activities chairman, Loren Ingols. More than 100 couples attended the formal winter event.

Amid a flowery setting reminiscent of an old-fashioned garden, Salinas J.C. students and their guests enjoyed an evening of dining and dancing at the Loma Linda night club near Watsonville, Friday, May 28. The Spring Prom was the first school affair ever held at the newly opened night spot and was well attended.

Dances

Dancing was the popular way of ending an evening during the football and basketball seasons. In the fall, students would journey from the Salinas stadium after the football games to dance in the J.C. men's gym. During the winter basketball season the court was cleared following the games for dancing to some popular orchestra.

Coach Bob Robinett, in his first season as head coach of the Salinas Junior College football fortunes, lifted the Panthers from the depths of the cellar to a respectable fourth-place tie. The Panthers' most decisive victory came against the powerful San Francisco Rams. They ruined the city eleven's title hopes by swamping them, 27-7. Probably the most thrilling encounters were played against San Mateo and Sacramento. Charlie Mornard flipped a short pass to Clarence Twitchell for a last second score to topple San Mateo, 12-7, while the Panthers were barely edged out in a see-saw passing duel at Sacramento, 32-27.

Blink tries tip-in

Although not in the running for the conference crown, the Salinas Junior College cagers, under the coaching of Ed Adams, gave the leaders scares before losing heartbreakers. Twice one field goal would have meant victory for the Salinas five over the Menlo and Marin quintets. Marin eventually went on to win the National Invitational Junior College title. Most consistent performers for the locals were Jerry Hoagland and Russ Bohlke.

Both Hoagland and Bohlke were given second string berths on the all-conference selections. Hoagland had no peer in retrieving balls off the boards.

Baseball

Under the guidance of a new coach, Jess Regli, the Salinas Junior College Panthers baseball nine enjoyed a better-than-average season. With several of last season's holdovers, notably Stan Miller, Roy Parker, Hal Hunter, and Charlie Mornard, augmented by the addition of several standout recruits, the Panthers were in the thick of the battle for conference supremacy. With the building of the new stands and wall, baseball for the first time was put on a paying basis.

Boxing

Limited to a small schedule, the Salinas Junior College boxers nevertheless earned their share of sports glory. Richard Burns, hard-slugging heavyweight, was the outstanding performer, bringing home the Golden Gloves Senior Division championship, held at Reno, Nevada. The Panther team wrested a tie from the University of Santa Clara pugilists earlier in the season.

Miss June Handley, women's gym instructor, planned a complete athletic program enabling the athletically-inclined women to participate in various intramural and interschool events. Several play days were the highlights of the year. The women combined forces with the men of the junior college to compete in the Annual Invitational N.C.J.C. Badminton Tourney for the first time. The mixed entry came through with second-place honors.
